Jun 27 2015 +1 I like that this is the first answer to address the multiple Unicode code points involved

However I think you might mention that regardless of the characters names or official prescriptions for use the less than and greater than signs are commonly used as a type of brackets probably because they can easily be typed and their display is more widely supported than that of the other symbols In formal usage it should definitely be is Neither of these options is available

This is the traditional rule iirc Fowlers discusses this at length. However in colloquial usage either option is fine and are seems to now be somewhat more common at least on teh internets

A commenter here nicely describes the sort of thought process which probably pushes people usually Dec 5 2016 When I should use It is and when This is ? For example when I show an apple to my son how is better to say It is an apple This is an apple What is the main difference between abovementioned p Feb 14 2015 If you want to get fancy about it you would say With whom are you staying? and maintain the antiquated convention of not not ending your sentences with prepositions Apr 29 2013 It s a historical accidenttheyre really two different words

In the sense buttocks the word goes back to OE rs and beyond that to Proto Indo European there are cognates in Greek Hittite and Old Irish. This is reflected in the ordinary British English arse the {r} is dropped only in US English

In the sense donkey the word goes back to OE assa derived it is thought via Celtic May 11 2015 I thought this excerpt from Oxford Dictionaries was instructive Although the expression a number is strictly singular the phrase a number of is used with plural nouns as what grammarians call a determiner or determiner

The verb should therefore be plural A number of people are waiting for the bus. This is not the case with the number which is still singular The Jul 18 2018 Background We have a motivational poster in our office that says None of us is as smart as all of us

I think that it s grammatically incorrect and here is my reasoning All of the tigers have Is it correct to say the team that will be attending with me is listed below or should I say the team that will be attending with me are listed below Jul 31 2017 Makes is the correct form of the verb because the subject of the clause is which and the word which refers back to the act of dominating not to France Spain or Austria

The sentence can be rewritten as The domination throughout history by France
