Dec 30 2014 I useCambropurchased from KAF. I have six in the bedroom for different types of flour. Actually in truth one is currently repurposed for trehalose. The smallest size KAF offers would easily hold 5 pounds of flour in the bag though I dump my bags out into the container

Why make extra work? Aug 12 2008 Cambroboxes are more reasonably priced but I find the available materials quite confusing

As a poster suggested above the Camwear GripLids sound perfect for chocolate storage and they come in the right size around $17 for each lid + the cost of the box Jan 10 2017 Square 6 quartCambroor Rubbermaid. I found Rubbermaid s at Sam s Club

What kind of volume are you looking at? Most of them hold about a liter and a half and can be bought through just about any restaurant supply company. For very large batches you might look atCambrodrink dispensers

They also hold hot beverages pretty well Dec 26 2005 ive been baking alot lately so now im thinking of buying one of those large sacks of flour and sugar from sam s club? i was wondering how should i store them and how long do they last for?thanks Jan 26 2007 I also started using the plasticCAMBROand Rubbermaid equivilents

Today I keep some of these around the kitchen for everyday use. I find that these clean up easier than most of the consumer kitchen products I have around

Does anyone else out there use these at home or do the esthetics of consumer pans and storage containers win out? Dec 21 2016 Your container should be fine with a circulator though I would prefer a 12 qtCambrofor most SV. For long cooks I like a Coleman stackable

For either container or yours a 2 1 2 hole saw will cut an opening for the Anova bluetooth unit

2 3 4 for Anova 1 Jan 3 2008 For extremely persistent odors inCambrocontainers I get some activated charcoal at an aquarium supply store and put a cup of it in the container in a bowl that will fit inside I have a Pyrex bowl that is never used for anything else For beverage containers plastic I put the charcoal in a
