Feb 11 2015 9Colleagueimplies same level or type of job In contrast to other answers that describecolleagueas more general because it applies also to similar positions in other companies I perceive that there s a different aspect where co worker is more general Feb 25 2020 Acolleaguecan be someone who works in the same workplace or for the same employer or for another employer in the same sector or industry

Also a fellow member of an body such as a political party. Associate and coworker are alternative terms an associate or coworker typically in a profession or in a civil or ecclesiastical office and often of similar rank or state a fellow worker or Nov 3 2020 Is there a word for quot more experiencedcolleague? quot In particular they have the same rank but more experience on the job

Edit Thanks for the answers! I was wondering is there a word like Sep 19 2011 1 You might consider cohort An assistant colleague accomplice. or A company band esp. of persons united in defence of a common cause

If you wanted a word that expresses solidarity as students this might be a good choice The tag showed the familiar name of acolleagueat work

Thecolleagueis not necessarily working at the moment the tag is shown much rather it s just acolleaguefrom the workplace Jun 8 2018 Here is the context Please enter a colleagues email address My coworker believes that in this context it should be colleagues

I think that because it is a possessive noun that it should be Sep 24 2017 I don t understand where you re getting answers. But I d rewrite it for me and my colleagues on the grounds that it avoids confusion

None of the questions you cite deals with the objects of a preposition Which is correct out of the following two sentences? If you or yourcolleaguehave any questions let me know If you or yourcolleaguehas any questions let me know I was originally thinking that May 15 2015 I would like to wish acolleaguewho is going on maternity leave

I have known about the pregnancy for a while now so saying Congratulations on your pregnancy doesn t sound right. All suggestions Jul 9 2020 In a social setting it would probably be OK to refer to them as yourcolleague

However if they are much senior to you it would probably be more polite to say Mr X is a head of department at the firm where I work or whatever is appropriate.
