Dec 8 2012 Casting decoy bodies with expandable Polystyrene foam is the next phase of my decoymaking process. That will be covered in a different thread. It is important to note that I received a lot of coaching and input in my efforts to learn to cast decoys

The steps I am posting here are a mix of other peoples techniques with a few twists of my own Mar 9 2005 Old Wooden Decoy are Treasure ! Its been 35 years of studying helping people for Mr.Decoy. Old hunter have priceless stories but they could have priceless old wooden duck decoys

Your old wooden duck goose even shorebird decoys may be priceless to you for sentimental reasons or could be Feb 1 2015 I ve taken so much from this forum I thought it was time to finally contribute

First and foremost this is a step by step thread on how to give old decoys new life but even more importantly than that how to have more successful duck hunts

I ve used these decoys I ve hand painted for a couple Dec 20 2024 Has anyone out there ever successfully reflocked duck decoys? Ive looked at some of the materials advertised for this but am skeptical as to the results thanks Jun 3 2012 I spent some time today wire brushing cleaning and coating 3 dozen decoys. After reading a variety of threads in thedecoyforum I decided to use truck bed liner as a base coat. All the threads indicated it would bind to the plastic really well and provide a good paintable base

While Feb 1 2010 Hey Guys getting ready to make some of my own decoys and have a few questions what i have is a diver body mold and a head molded after a herters 72 a brandt mold and head molded after a herters and a canvasback head mold what i plan on doing is using a eps expandable beads being this is Jun 9 2015 I was thinking about filling some decoys with foam

I was wondering if anyone has done this and how it worked out? Also what is the best way to do this and the products used in the process? Thanks!! Jul 6 2012 I am looking at buying molds for making my own foam decoys

I want to start building a foamdecoyspread and steadily replace my plastic decoys with them as I get groups of them completed. The goal is to have an all foam spread within two years

I have a few questions on making foam decoys Aug 13 2012 I paid $110 for a used large puddle duckdecoybody mold and mallard head molds of fleabay

I picked up a teal wood duck body mold two teal head molds two wood duck head molds and a pintail head mold for $170 including shipping from a guy on Ebay Dec 17 2008 This month I thought we would do an easy duckdecoy
