I wouldn't trust Brave or DDG. As if governments don't use honeypots. I don't see people getting in trouble for not using privacy browsers. And people still get busted using Tor even

If you're like the person that took naked pics of his kid on a networked device and channeled it through Google services it's not a reason to go with a privacy browser

It's a reason to get offline because DuckDuckGo is a private alternative to Google search as well as free browsers for mobile/desktop devices. Unlike Chrome DuckDuckGo browsers have privacy built in with best in class tracker blocking that stops cookies, creepy ads that follow you around more

We also have privacy extensions for most browsers. We've been an independent company since our founding in 2008. Join the tens of millions who use the DuckDuckGo Windows and Android browsers

They make money by putting ads at the top of the search results; it's not a scam because there is a lot of money to be made through advertising. Lately the quality of the search results has been substandard and hopefully they can fix that

But the actual browsers are very good if you want a minimal feature set 115 votes 108 comments

I've heard this thing about the digital footprint and I want to know if duckduckgo makes me safe from mine being seen and if Mar 3 2023 DuckDuckGo is a private alternative to Google search as well as free browsers for mobile/desktop devices

Join the tens of millions who use the DuckDuckGo Windows and Android browsers. From what I know it's just a reskin from the operating system that you have. So it's practically Microsoft Edge for Windows and Safari for MacOs

From some privacy test I've seen if it does not have any real difference so you might as well use those browsers with ad blocking extensions. I read an article on techcrunch link below that says soon to be launched Brave search is the only real privacy focused search engine built from ground up

I use duckduckgo as my primary search option and was fairly confident about the privacy
