Jun 21 2025 Re HMV102 plays some records and not others. by OrthoFan Mon Dec 22 2025 11 02 pm I agree with Orchorsol

Along this line is the sound box s throat gasket in good SOFT condition? If it s hard that will impose more back and forth resistance on the record especially ones with slightly worn grooves Dec 18 2017 Re HMV5A 5B soundbox differences by Inigo Mon Mar 19 2018 8 59 pm Yes Mike

I am planning to do similar recordings with my mobile phone which seems to work finer that I suspected judging by the YouTube vdeo. I will prepare recordings of the same record with the 102 and 194 using both sound boxes. A true video for comparison Mar 27 2018 ProjectHMV118

Too far gone? by Jaso Mon May 26 2025 4 33 am Got these remains of aHMV118 from a fellow forum member John nearly a couple of years ago. It is pretty gone but there is still ebough left to save it

I like to think any gramophone can be saved as long as there is serial number tag left Oct 15 2025 HMVwas an affiliate of the Victor company but didnt have the rights to the Western Electric Bell system patents for the orthophonic Victrola

So to play the new electric recordingsHMVcame up with 4 swan neck tone arm design Jun 21 2025 Re HMV102 plays one side only 25 winds by OrthoFan Tue Dec 09 2025 4 14 pm I remember that theHMV102 I used to own a very early model would play a single side after about 20 25 turns of the crank but I had to wind it more to play a second 10 record completely through Jun 21 2025 Re HMV102 Lid Stay Assembly Question by mikeverrechia Thu Dec 18 2025 9 24 am Hi Inigo Thank you for your reply which has helped me to resolve the problem

I found the picture you kindly sent really useful Jun 21 2025 Re HMV102 plays some records and not others

by Oedipus Tue Dec 23 2025 12 20 pm It is not difficult to soften the end of a spring with a blow torch and it is necessary if you want to cut and drill it but I would be inclined to try the long spring in place 4 days ago HMV102 plays some records and not others
