Unconditionally wrapping the imploded string with quotes will result in an empty quoted string when the array is empty this doesn't feel ideal because it gives the same result as an array with a lone element containing empty string an ambiguous result

Instead just use to target the start and end positions of each string and inject a quote on those positions

Code Demo Jul 11 2012 I just tested `http_build_query + urldecode` vs `implode`. `implode` was 10 times faster So although `explode` and `implode` are unarguably way more dramatic sounding I would vote for `join` as a more universal way to express the concatenation of every value of an array into a string If you wrap your `implode` in the the `<pre>` tags you can see it is working properly

Additionally your arguments are backwards on your `implode` function according to current documentation This array holds a list of items and I want to turn it into a string but I don't know how to make the last item have a amp and before it instead of a comma

1 = `gt coke` 2= `gt sprite` 3= `gt f 6` If one simply wants to `implode` a single array column as in this case then the simplest thing to do is Feb 11 2023 And when `implode` is called with two parameters but the the second one is null `implode` thinks it is called with just one parameter and expects it to be an array How to use `implode` an array with commas but and before the last value? Using jQuery you can use `$.each` to `implode` an array Note that `output_saved_json` is the array and `tmp` is the string that will store the imploded array Hyphenate all words in an array then `implode` all elements using a space as glue Asked 10 years 10 months ago Modified 5 months ago Viewed 367 times.
