For those of you who have never heard of it before Mekhela Chador is a traditional Assamese attire which is made up of two parts the bottom portion is called Mek Mar 15 2025 The history of theMekhlaChador begins in the past when Assamese women wore the Riha a single piece of cloth

The riha was wrapped around the upper body and covered the head. The Riha changed over time to become theMekhlaChador where the Chador is the upper portion worn over the shoulder and theMekhlais the lower piece Mekhela chador is a traditional Assamese dress worn by women in Assam

It consists of two main pieces of cloth that are draped around the body. The bottom piece known as the mekhela is wrapped from the waist down

It is a wide cylindrical piece of cloth that is pleated and tucked in at the waist with the folds facing to the right unlike the Nivi style saree where the pleats face left

While the mekhela itself is not tied with strings an underskirt with a string is often worn underneath Mekhela Sador is a two piece authentic Assamese traditional attire worn by the women of Assam.The bottom weave is called the Mekhela and the upper weave is called the Sador

Serekis Mekhela Sadors truly embodies simplicity sustainability and an ode to represent the Assamese traditional handloom heritage Apr 14 2024 Over time this evolved into theMekhlaSador now known as Mekhela Chador reflecting Assam s rich
