Jun 7 2017 When using looks meaning appearance I would stick to that definition different from look plural noun a person's physical appearance a young woman with wholesome good looks I never chose people just because of their looks. She had lost her looks. Normally looks is only used with people

Otherwise I would use appearance The restaurant dish must deliver on both taste and appearance. You May 25 2016 11 There is a subtle difference in usage between the two. When we say it looks like we are talking about a quick visual inspection

If we want to investigate something casually we say we will take a look. The implication is that this is a brief at a glance impression and while we have some confidence we are not absolutely certain With respect to the words at issue grammatical sentences include It looks as if it's going to fall

It looks like it's going to fall. Since like and as if mean the same in the context of your sentence it would be redundant and wrong to repeat them one after another Dec 4 2018 Just wondering if these sentences are correct. All these rocks look the same

Potentially an informal usage? Like saying anyways instead of anyway?? All these rocks kind of look the same. 1 It looks It seems. The verb to seem is actually the passive of the verb to see but has gone beyond sight in use. Both looks and seems can refer to how something is seen

The book seems green. The book looks green. Seems and feels can involve touching and imaginings beyond senses This cloth seems rough. This cloth feels rough she looks like a cat she looks like an 80's pop star etc

How does she look? Note the question sounds more natural without like. Since it's a how question I think this question fits better if the expected answer is a descriptive adjective she looks great she looks terrible etc

But they are somewhat interchangeable Oct 23 2016 Their pale and colourless looks are not liked by slender girls. Their pale and colourless looks is not liked by slender girls

I cannot choose which verb [is or are] is suitable for above sentence A quick search of would you rather look good or be good looking or would you rather have good looks or be good looking reveals that most of the comparisons are against good looking e.g

Would you rather be rich or good looking? In general looking good has the feeling of things are looking up things will only get better Yes there is a difference between them. They are not the same

What is it like? It's a very general question about a thing and it may include many
