Should I use make or makes in the following statement? Please explain why your experience and qualifications make you the best candidate for this position Jul 31 2017 Makes is the correct form of the verb because the subject of the clause is which and the word which refers back to the act of dominating not to France Spain or Austria

The sentence can be rewritten as The domination throughout history by France Spain and Austria alternately over Milan makes it a city full of different cultural influences Jul 3 2020 The formal and traditional answer is makes because the subject is the singular noun phrase receiving homemade cupcakes

In actual speech and even sometimes in writing many people say make under the influence of the more recent plural noun cupcakes. I would recommend saying makes but be prepared to hear make Thank you! That makes sense

I must have heard people use it incorrectly so much that the correct way sounds strange. I will use your suggested sentence as well

I appreciate your help! Jun 4 2020 Makes is the third person singular simple present tense of make so if a singular thing makes you mad it repeatedly does so or does so on an ongoing basis The phrasemakes for has a more specific meaning that the word makes and in this context limits its definition to the following to help maintain or promote further Feb 20 2019 The subject must agree in number with its verb

This is the rule to be applied while deciding what to opt for. Thus if a subject is singular its verb must also be singular if a subject is plural its verb must also be plural. But this is a case of a compound sentence means made up of two or more parts

Two or more words can be compounded or linked by joining them with any of three words Dec 5 2014 To make for is an idiom with several different meanings

In the context of this question the approximate meaning is to produce to represent or to constitute Raw earthworms make for grim eating = Raw earthworms represent an unpleasant kind of food Dobermans make for great guard dogs = Dobermans have the qualities needed to make them great guard dogs Sowing camomile in your lawn makes Jun 14 2015 What makes is asking what thing condition or feature that is present Why is is asking for a reason cause or condition behind the observation Both serve the same general meaning as both are not asking for an accurate or specific explanation

Answers are probably not going to reflect the specific meaning of that difference so it is probably Want to learn about the irregular verb Make ? We've got all you need clear definitions conjugations and usage examples for effective
