Sep 24 2019 The phrase I had acallwith is correct and can be used in written English. It is typically used to indicate a phone conversation typically with a work or business contact Which one of following sentence is correct? You can call me on my cell. You can call me at my cell

Or is there some other preposition? Or both are right? Mar 16 2011 Is either in acall or onacall incorrect usage when referring to someone attending a phone possibly conference call? If not what s appropriate usage for both? end callencore Encore Aug 23 2014 Our numbers have a specific two letter combination that tells us how the number sounds

For example 9th 3rd 301st What do we call these special sounds? Feb 7 2014 So asking that in particular doesn t make sense

Still in general the combination of how and call is not incorrect it just means something else so it is a matter of finding the right context to show that How do you call that is not incorrect it asks for instructions mediums or means to call that Dec 3 2022 Apparently both call in sick and call out sick are used and there is a regional difference in usage in U.S

English. Based on a poll where 7493 US adults surveyed calling in sick is the most popular phrase in the United States and regionally most popular in the Midwest while calling out sick is most popular in the Northeast and possibly Feb 17 2018 Cf. to call one s or the bluff at bluff n.2 3a

This series of cross references suggests to me that there is likely a connection between the earlier gambling expression call meaning to match someone s bet in a game of cards essentially challenging their hand and the modern expression callout meaning to challenge someone publicly Mar 29 2016 callsomeone up especially North American English to make a telephone call to someone Oxford Learner s Dictionary call someone up or call up someone chiefly US to make a telephone call to someone I haven t spoken to her in years but I called her up last night and we talked for hours. Call me up when you get back from your vacation Sep 29 2020 In my school was taught that to call someone in respect we must call Sir if he is quite mature

I used to do it not to call him with mister. Of course I know how to use word mister to call someone with his last name or his post such as Mr. President Mr. Smith etc Then my question was that calling common in the old time?.
