Plaid has raised billions in funding! I would think with Plaid using bank logos to make their fake bank login forms look legitimate banks would be after Plaid with lawsuits

But apparently some of them are investors! On Plaid's website Citi American Express and others are listed as investors May 1 2024 Can Plaid still access my account without even after I change my username and password? Well Plaid's access to your account is dependent on the token not your username and password

If you change your username and password the token becomes invalid and Plaid should no longer have access to your account. There are scenarios where Plaid can still have access but in general no Jan 25 2019 Let's say you trade on Coinbase

Every time you need to deposit money via Plaid you change the password to your online bank account pair your bank with Coinbase deposit money unpair your bank I'm not sure if necessary change back the password

Would you consider this approach 100% safe? Sep 17 2024 See car companies using your location data to sell your driving habits to insurance companies or Plaid selling people's entire financial transaction history

They may not even want the call history itself but it contains my contacts which many companies do desperately want. Jan 23 2025 I know that when enabling 2FA all sessions must expire

But how about disabling 2FA? Should all sessions expire then? I know that disabling 2FA is a risk but that's not the question. I'm wondering Jul 31 2018 I am filling out a form to set up a recurring payment with a local government building

The form requests that I put my credit card number expiration date and CVV number which I'm a little hesitant Feb 12 2020 Joint bank accounts don't work that way. Each user has their own password and user id and even debit credit card linked to the account if they exist

Depending on the type of account you may have disjunctive accounts where each user can do everything and conjunctive where each operation requires approval by all owners

So do you mean a conjunctive online account for some service? Aug 7 2017 Is this feature limited to a few selected banks? If so I can imagine that Venmo may have passed a special agreement with them and may use your login and password only to obtain a ticket and that only this ticket gets stored in the database not your bank credentials but this is just guessing in any way they should never have to
