The compound determinative someone is inherently singular due to the singular nominal base one so [2] has the expected singular verb cleans

Clean in [1] may appear to be a plural verb but it s actually a plain form infinitive verb since only an infinitival clause can satisfy the complement requirement of the causative verb have 40 landsomeoneare interested is grammatically correct

It is the convention in English that when you list several people including yourself you put yourself last so you really should say Someoneandlare interested

SomeoneandI is the subject of the sentence so you should use the subjective case I rather than the objective me Oct 3 2020 to make suresomeoneis doing okay be it in their work health or otherwisethink check up on is the best as this can carry the sense of finding out about their welfare Feb 27 2012 Are there any subtle differences between somebody and someone or can they be used completely interchangeably?
