Jun 12 2025 Thresholdconcepts are critical inweedsienceas they help farmers and agronomists determine when weed control measures are necessary

The concept ofthresholdsis based on the idea that there is a certain level of weed infestation beyond which crop yields are significantly impacted The concept ofthresholdshas many applications inweedsience depending on the response being measured

The most common adjectives used to describethresholdsare damage economic period and action Thethresholdconcept has traditionally been employed in decision making in the context of pest management in agricul tural production systems Norton and Mumford 1993

As with many terms athresholdcan be defined in a number of ways leading to substantial confusion in the literature It follows that the extent to which aweedcan reinfest a location will generally be determined by the size of the seed bank and soweedproblems can be minimised by adopting a management program that reduces populations particularly the seedbank Critical Period ofWeedControl is athresholdcommonly used which is relative to time from planting date

Researchers have identified at what point during the growing season weeds can inflict the most damage on a crops potential yield Jul 29 2011 The development of empirical models describing single and multi speciethresholdsare reviewed and discussed in terms of the magnitude ofweedthresholdvalues in various crops and the importance and limitations of the parameters used to calculate these values Actionthresholdsmay be defined as theweedpopulation at which a grower decides to institute a control tactic and may be above below or at the economicthresholdlevel Torino Finestre leader per Infissi Serramenti Porte Interne Porte Blindate e Tende da Sole
